Supervisors Find Increases
In Fees and Salaries Necessary

MAY INVEST ROAD FUND No Roads Can Be Built Dur- ing War—May Buy $36,000 Bonds

After perhaps one of the most interesting sessions held for some years, the Board of Supervisors today finally agreed to adjourn and call the work done for this session.

One of the most important matters before the board was the matter of investment of $36,000 of the Lincoln Highway fund. During the war there will be no road building done and this leaves that amount on hand for investment. The money is now, of course, in the hands of the county treasurer, and it is very likely that the funds will be invested in some manner in order that it may bring something to the county.

In Liberty Bonds.
States Attorney Edwards and County Treasurer Moyer both addressed the board this forenoon on this matter. Several of the members of the board are of the opinion that the money could be, and should be, used in purchasing Liberty Bonds.

Another quite important matter accomplished was that of increasing the clerk hire and salaries of several of the county officials.

The fees and salaries committee reported to the board that they favored the following, which, of course, was approved by the board.

County judge, salary now $2,000; was $1,700.

County treasurer, clerk hire and expense fund advanced to $5,000.

Sheriff's salary fixed at $1,700; was $1,200.

County clerk deputy hire and expenses advanced to $3,500, an increase of $1,000.

All this increase was absolutely necessary due to the fact that we are in war and the exorbitant prices now existing.

The sanitarian proposition will be placed on the election ballot this fall and will be voted on by the people of the county. A new petition was filed late yesterday afternoon and is now on file in the office of the county clerk.

GRAVE CHARGES MADE AGAINST THE BREWERS

INTERESTS ARE CHARGED WITH HAVING SPREAD ILLEGAL
PROPAGANDA.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, Sept. 19.—Investigation of alleged political and legislative propaganda by the brewery interests of the country, was ordered today by the Senate in a resolution directing Alien Property Custodian Palmer to probe charges which have been made that the brewers have bought newspapers, contributed to campaign funds, have influenced newspapers through advertising contracts, and have paid money to government officials for which they obtained pledges to help their cause. The investigation was ordered following testimony given yesterday by Arthur Brisbane, owner of the Washington Times, that he had purchased that paper on money loaned him by a brewer. The brewers are charged with boycotting American manufacturers who were hostile to their interests and with being allied with the German-American Alliance.

FINE MEETING OF COMMANDERY

Prominent Masons from Lee and adjoining counties attended the Masonic work at the local Temple yesterday afternoon and evening. Thirty-three men received the Red Cross degree. Eminent Commander Glenn Coe had the work in charge, and did exceptionally well. Old Masons congratulated him after the services. Among those who received the degree was Ensign Charles Schick, of the United States Navy, of Chicago, who is in charge of the navy ensign school on the Municipal Pier, Chicago. A splendid supper was served, that feature of the affair being in charge of the wife of the Eminent Commander, Mrs. Coe. There were several talks from prominent Knights Templars, and on the whole the affair was one of the most interesting ever held here in the history of the Commandery.

DANCE IN HONOR OF JACKIE BAND

Under the auspices of the Woman's Committee, Council of National Defense, a dance will be given in honor of the "Jackie's" band from the Great Lakes on Saturday evening in the Countryman hall on Galena avenue. The Rice orchestra will furnish the music. As this is to be a community affair the woman's committee hopes that everyone will attend. Admission will be the nominal sum of 50c per couple. Light refreshments will be served. The Brown Shoe Company Pleasure club has kindly given up its Saturday evening dance. Charles Engel has been placed in charge of the decorating of the hall.

FOR WAR RELIEF WORK United Effort On Part Of People of Communities Raises Sum

"A city that does not mean something more than a large number of people, does not mean much as a city."

"Unless the citizens of a city get the vision of something bigger than each person, or group of persons, pursuing their own individualistic way, it can neither defeat corruption nor practise righteousness."

"When John had a Revelation concerning heaven, what he saw was merely the transformation of what he already was familiar with. The city that he knew the best became the 'New Jerusalem,' said Charles A. Alden in his lecture at the Peoples church last night. He discussed the War Chest idea as based on the experience of the campaign for the Patriots' Fund in Aurora, with which he was actively connected, as chairman of two different committees. In part he further said as follows:

OLD GLORY TO WAVE AT LAFAYETTE HOME

MARSHAL FOCH ACKNOWLEDG-ING K. C. HONOR, PREDICTS VICTORY FOR PERSHING

Marshal Foch, supreme commander of the Allied armies now smashing the German lines, has accepted the Marshal's baton offered him by the Knights of Columbus of America. In accepting the baton, the Great French commander sent the following cable to James A. Flaherty, supreme knight of the Knights of Columbus: "I am deeply touched by the congratulations and the delicate attention of the Knights of Columbus. Kindly convey to them my best thanks. The souvenir of Metz evoked by you holds a large place in my thoughts, in the same way that it calls forth your effort. It was from Metz Lafayette went to help your ancestors, and we shall one day see your victorious banner floating in Metz."

(Signed) "FOCH."
This cablegram prophesying ultimate victory for American armies by the greatest of all Allied leaders, was written just before the great offensive movement was launched.

MT. MORRIS MAN HAS FINE FRUIT

Irving Potter is harvesting a crop of peaches, estimated at twenty-five bushels, from three dozen or more trees at his home in the east part of Mt. Morris. While the number of bushels which he is gathering is not large ordinarily, in a season like this when the peach crop hereabouts has been an entire failure, the crop grown by Mr. Potter is quite remarkable.

AUTOS COLLIDED ON RIVER STREET

One of Watts' Ford taxi cars driven by Fred Hatch, and a Studebaker owned and driven by Sam Bennett, collided at the intersection of River street and Crawford avenue at 10:15 o'clock last night and both cars were considerably damaged. The Ford suffered a broken wheel and bent axle, while the larger machine's radiator was smashed and the bumper was broken off. No one was hurt in the mishap.

TODAY'S WAR BULLETINS

Germans Half-Hearted at Metz

By Associated Press Leased Wire
With the American Army in Lorraine, Sept. 19.—The Germans, entrenched in their second line trenches before Metz, appear to have accepted the new situation, and their tactics are now wholly defensive. They have carried out a seemingly half-hearted bombardment of the American lines, and even challenges by American and French patrols are refused by the enemy except where a conflict is inevitable.

American observers report decreased activity behind the German lines, indicating that the shattered unit which met the American advance have been relieved by fresher troops.

It Is Expected True Americans Will Subscribe Without Being Asked

"Over the Top in Three Days" was the decision reached by 57 Liberty Loan County Chairmen at the five regional meetings held during the last few days in Galesburg, Peoria, Decatur, Rockford and Joliet. At each of the meetings from ten to twelve of the counties in the northern part of Illinois lying within the Seventh Federal Reserve District were represented.

"Your share is fair" is the principle underlying the individual allotment plan that will be adopted in many counties. In practice it has worked well in a number of places where it was tried in the last campaign. Every right-minded man wants to bear his share of the burden, and if he realizes that he is not asked to carry any more of the burden.

His Record of Five En-

Beaten Once

By Associated Press Leased Wire

With the American Army in Lorraine, Sept. 19.—First Lieutenant David Putnam, of Newton, Mass., "Ace of Aces" of the American aerial army, was killed late Wednesday afternoon while on patrol duty over the American line.

He was flying with Lieut. Robertson, when seven German machines attacked them, four making for Putnam and three for Robertson. The attack was sudden and unexpected and came from above. Lieut. Putnam was shot twice through the heart. His machine glided to earth at Liney, behind the American lines, where his body was found by his comrades. Lieut. Robertson returned unhurt.

Lieut. Putnam was a lineal descendant of Gen. Israel Putnam of Revolutionary War fame, and was credited with twelve aerial victories over the Germans.

His first victory was on Jan. 19, as a member of the Lafayette Squadron, when he brought down a German plane, for which he was awarded the French War Cross on March 5. Later he was decorated further by the French government, and early in June he was transferred to the American aviation service.

His greatest accomplishment was on June 10, when he brought down five German machines in one day, which record has been exceeded but once during the entire war, Lieut. Fonke of the French aviation service having brought down six enemy planes in one day. Lieut. Putnam's last aerial victory was reported on Sept. 2.

There has been considerable anxiety on the part of Co. Supt. of Highways L. B. Neighbour and the Commissioners of the several towns as to the bearing recent rulings of the U. S. Highways Council will have on the local road and bridge situation. The use of engine fuels and the shipment of materials for road work seemed to be prohibited. On account of the scarcity of labor it has been almost impossible thus far this year to do any road work. And with winter almost at hand it was vitally important that local road officials know just what work is to be permitted.

About Stoves

We strongly urge those who need a stove to buy early. The supply is limited. Many have realized this condition to such an extent that we have already sold a large proportion of our stock. Many, however, do not grasp the situation and are going to be disappointed when they come to buy.

We believe we have the best heating stove there is. Our experience with them covers 17 years.

Very Satisfactory

Our patrons find our flashlights and batteries very satisfactory. A certain man prominent in the business world, once remarked that flashlight batteries were the cause of more fights between buyer and seller than anything that ever happened. Not so with our batteries. Complaints are so few that we replace usually without question.

Don't forget, that we now sell Paints, Varnish, Stains, Etc.

To give up a little sugar, a little wheat and a little meat is but a small payment for you to make to the man who offers his life for you.

The work is in charge of five Baby Welfare committees: Mrs. Harry Warner, chairman, of the woman's committee, Council of National Defense, and will be done in the rooms of the C. N. D. on Galena avenue. All the physicians of the city will give their services at one time or another and Mrs. Morrill, Mrs. Soper and Mrs. R. L. Baird, all trained nurses, will assist. It is hoped to secure the use of many of the automobiles of the city in order that all the mothers and their children may find it easy to be present on one of the days.

A BUS RIDE HELPS WHILE AWAY THE EVENING.

CHAPTER XLVI.

"Who wants you to get a taxi? You extravagant boy!" Mollie had replied. "Taxi's fairly eat up money. We ate up enough without giving them any. Come on, let's walk over to the Avenue and ride on the bus," then, as Brian hesitated, "There are other evenings coming, Brian Hackett. Didn't you ask me to eat with you again tomorrow night? Or did I dream it?"

"It was no dream. Perhaps we better take the bus," and, with rather a shamefaced laugh, Brian put his hand under Mollie's elbow and walked toward the Avenue.

On top of the bus riding up-town, he soon forgot his embarrassment. In fact no one could long retain such a feeling when with Mollie King. It was after ten o'clock when they finally climbed down at the end of the route in Washington Square, having ridden as far as the bus went up-town, then down.

"Come in and smoke, if you like," Mollie said as they reached the red brick building that housed her.

"May I? That will be fine! It's awfully stupid up home alone, and it is too early to turn in."

They smoked and "reminded" until nearly twelve o'clock, when Mollie "shooed" him out, as she said.

"You'd never think of going," she laughed, "you haven't the slightest idea of time."

"Not when I'm with you, Mollie. It drags awfully sometimes," meaning when he was alone; and Mollie taking it to mean that it dragged when he was with Ruth; and so, her warm heart filling with pity, she said:

"Come as often as you like, Brian."

As before, Brian would have been shocked could he have known what was in Mollie's mind, and to do him justice he would quickly have disabused her of the notion that he wasn't happy with Ruth. It was only that he was aggrieved at her absence. But Mollie had no idea but that "poor Brian" was unhappily married to a "high brow girl."

"Gee! but Mollie's a peach!" Brian said as, once again, he took the bus to ride home. It happened to be the same expression he had used the last time he had taken her to dinner, and then had gone home the same way.

He counted his money before he went to bed. A smile twisted his mouth when he saw what a hole the dinner had made in the little roll.

"Good thing Mollie set down on the one hoss shay," he mumbled. "I get foolish sometimes, I guess. Bus rides for us, Mollie, unless we cut down on the eats," he said as he put his depleted roll back into his pocket.

Then idly he wondered who that "bloke" was who had stared at Mollie so.

"Can't blame him much! she looked sweet enough to kiss, tonight." Then, as Ruth's picture caught his eye: "But Ruth has it all over them all, for style. She ought to, too! two hundred dollars for a dress! I don't believe Mollie spends that much in a year on her back," in which surmise he was right. Mollie didn't! She didn't have it to spend.

The next morning he received a night telegraph letter from Ruth. She had arrived safely, had found everything alright, and would hurry back as soon as possible. She gave her address and asked him to write her.

Brian fully intended to write that morning. But when he reached the office he found some extra work—which meant extra money—so he sent her a wire instead. He needed the money. That Ruth might need the letter, never occurred to him.

That night, too, he dined with Mollie, and then they went to the movies. She had insisted that they eat at a little table d'hote place where the dinner was only sixty cents.

"Quite a come down," Brian had said, laughingly, yet in his heart glad that she had proposed it.

"We musn't spend money every night like we did last night," she had said in a way that made him feel she was looking out for his interests—which she really was.

"You're a good little scout, Mollie! Some girls wouldn't care if they broke a fellow, as long as they had a good time. I made some extra money today, hustled like the old scratch to make it, too. We'll blow ourselves tomorrow night. Go up on the bus to Claremont or something like that."

"Who said I was going to dine with you tomorrow night? I like the way you dispose of my time." "I did! and you will, won't you Mollie? Please take pity on an old married man. Ruth will be home in a few days, then I won't ask you to make a martyr of yourself any longer."

"Martyr! you goose! Don't you know I am having the time of my young life! Of course I'll dine with you tomorrow night!"

MARINE CORPS' NEW INSIGNIA

Green Instead of Blue Uniform Is Not Recognized by Those Who Are Not Up to Minute.

Surprisingly few civilians even after their country has been in the world war for nearly a year can readily identify the various uniforms of the United States service. Especially is this true in regard to the United States marine corps. The change of the marine corps' uniforms from blue to forest green has added greatly to the bewilderment of the layman who likes to recognize a military man by his uniform or insignia.

The small boy, however, is not so easily fooled; as is shown by an incident which occurred a few days ago.

One of the sergeants from a marine recruiting station was walking along the street when he came on a group of small boys and girls playing on the sidewalk. As he approached them one little girl asked:

"What is that man in uniform?"

"I guess he's a French officer," said another girl.

One of the boys eyed him closely for a moment, and then plucked himself squarely in front of the sergeant, and holding him by the coat with two chubby little hands, said: "I wana see watcha got on yer cap."

The lad knew that the device embracing the globe, eagle and anchor means "marine," whether the wearer be clothed in blue, forestry green or khaki. "Oh, you're a marine, aincha," he exclaimed jubilantly. "An' he's a sergeant and a sharpshooter, too," he told his playmates, with a knowing little nod.

Messenger Wears Title.

War times and the unprecedented demand for aids for Uncle Sam have brought many quaint characters to Washington, notes a capital correspondent.

LABOR CONGRESS BEHIND WILSON

By Associated Press Licensed Wire

By Associated Press Licensed Wire

Another "Scrap of Paper."

Twenty-seven years ago settlers at Olympia, Wash., made a treaty with the Indians allowing them to fish anywhere and at any time, says Commerce and Finance. Now the state game laws prohibit them from the sport during the closed season.

Saluskin, big chief of the Yakimas, with a number of other Indians, after protesting in vain to the local game warden, went to the city to protest against the violation of their rights.

Imagine a chieftain, 90 years old, straight as an arrow, yet half blind and enfeebled, entering a court room in a modern city. This man had seen the victory of civilization in its struggle against the wilderness. He had seen his race pass control of the land to the white race. Still believing in the honor of the white man, he came to protest against the infringement of a treaty made a quarter of a century before.

Saluskin was informed by an interpreter that the district attorney could not change the state game laws. "Hoh!" was his only comment.

Women's Wear that Delivers Service Without Waste

YOU want to help the country and the allies; do it by being careful in clothes buying.

Pay enough that you can count on right wear; for that means no waste of money, no waste of material, no waste of labor.

The money that would have to be spent twice for cheaper garments that are quick to show wear will be saved; the materials will be saved for other purposes; the labor saved for other needs.

And we have seen to all that by buying for you only from makers who are co-operating with the Government by passing up fabrics needed for overseas duty and skillfully turning their wonderful ability to creating styles of fashionableness without wasteful over-decoration.

You'll know what we mean when you see them, and what's more, you'll like them. You'll recognize their smartness and their unquestionable value and appreciate that you'll have something left for more Thrift Stamps, more Liberty Bonds, more Red Cross donations, more war help of every sort.

COMPULSORY ENGLISH.

Magistrate Cobb of New York City, says that American communities make it too easy for foreigners to get along in this country without learning English. There are too many notices translated for them into their native language, too many newspapers printed for them, too many interpreters ready to help them, and there is too much legal tolerance of their failure to Americanize their speech.

In no other country, he says, is ignorance of the language so tolerated.
In European countries generally, a residence of two years is supposed to equip an alien to speak the language in court and elsewhere. In London, with its great foreign population, the police courts have no interpreters, as we have in our cities.

The magistrate suggests that there ought to be an amendment to the immigration laws making a foreign resident subject to deportation unless he acquires a speaking knowledge of the English language with five years.
Possibly that would be a little too drastic. But surely it would be justifiable to refuse naturalization papers to any alien who has not taken the trouble to learn the rudiments of the language, and to set some time limit on the period of tolerance for all aliens who neglect alike to learn English and to seek American citizenship.

If, in the past, Americans themselves have been much to blame for the slowness of aliens to Americanize their speech and to Americanize their thinking and their manner of life, that is true no longer. American tolerance as to these things is about to end. There is now, and will be hereafter, little excuse for the alien who persists in the most obvious and conclusive evidence of alienism—the exclusive use of a foreign language, and the continued use of it after he has been here long enough to secure final naturalization papers.

Chicago sees the dry day coming. An ordinance is about to be passed allowing saloonkeepers to take out monthly licenses—at $100 a month instead of $1000 a year. This will give them the opportunity to shut up shop as soon as the supply of beer manufactured up to December 1 has been exhausted. Some of them may continue to July 1, when whisky goes under the ban. The Chicago city treasury, at all events, is going to be shy three to four million dollars of saloon license moneys. But then there may be fewer murderers to chase, to jail and finally allow to escape.

Peace should never again be what it was before the war with Germany —a time of luxury, thoughtless and unwarranted assurance that the future held nothing but continued peace, and, therefore, of unpreparedness both as to the individual and the nation.

DR. HOUSE TO READ

of Concentration," Lec-

WEDNESDAY'S TALK

The Lutheran church had a large audience last night that heard Dr. E.
L. House on "The Creative Power of Prayer." The people are finding out that a whole chautauqua has come into their midst, that is worth while,

and has for a leader a man who can express himself clearly and forcefully. He said: "The new psychology does not deny prayer. To do so would be to deny the instincts of the race, would be to impeach the Scriptures and the example of Christ and Paul. The new psychology recognizes that distance does not separate God and man for in him we live and move and have our being. Laws do not build God out of his universe, for higher laws can modify and control lower laws, and laws have been made subject to praying. But prayer must be made in an honest, pure heart, and must be subject to the will of God, for he has an intricate system of governments to handle, and all must be justly dealt with.
Co-operation is demanded, and what we can do, God will not do.

Prayer Forms Great Alliance.

"But prayer makes for a great alliance, and we are as strong as the force to which we commit ourselves.
To lay hold of God is to have the greatest help in the world. And prayer for the sick is a spiritual message, a mighty tonic, and to lift the mind in hope through prayer, is to lift the body correspondingly. And when we pray for those we love, we vibrate out to other minds that are in harmony with us. To think God is to touch God; to think of son is to touch son. Prayer is also a mighty creative force. When we pray we begin to create the thing for which we pray. Moody prayed for a school at Northfield and he created it. A thing must first be a thought; therefore to pray is to have the thing coming in its incipency."

Tonight Dr. House will speak on "The Power of Concentration" and at the close of the lecture will read four persons as to their character and abilities of mind. Tomorrow afternoon his subject will be "Tuning to the Infinite."

FINDS BASIS FOR WAR CHEST IDEA IN TEXT FROM HOLY SCRIPTURE

"National consciousness" comes from all citizens in the nation being mobilized for efficient conduct.

"Community consciousness comes from all citizens in the community being mobilized for efficient conduct."

Quotas Come to Cities.

"Quotas for war work and for war relief work are assessed, not on individuals, not on groups of individuals, not on churches, not on labor unions, not on bankers' associations, but on communities composed of all citizens."

"In war work communities get quotas for Liberty Bonds and for War Savings Certificates or Thrift Stamps."

"In war relief work quotas are ascribed to the community for those agencies which have been endorsed by the government of the United States as essential to winning the war."

War Relief.

"War relief work has two distinct angles. First, that with which we are familiar, as done by the Red Cross, which cares for the wounded men. Second, that which is done through several other selected agencies which encourage the uninjured soldier, relieve him of mental confusion, and strengthen the morale of the entire army."

War Relief and War.

"The direct connection between the work of war relief and war itself is sometimes overlooked. Two problems confront America. First, to train the men. Second, to get them across the ocean."

"When war relief work returns a wounded man to the firing line, or by encouragement strengthens an uninjured man to fight better, it is dealing with a man who is already trained and already transported. America has to waste no time in either training or shipping this man. Therefore, every ounce of energy which is put into the work of war relief has a direct bearing on successfully meeting the two great problems of America, in this crisis."

Conservation of Energy.

"The War Chest Idea is now officially endorsed by the order of the President that seven agencies of war relief shall make one combined drive, instead of separate drives, for funds with which to do their work. This combined drive will be made in the month of November and will include the Y. M. C. A., the Y. W. C. A., the National Library Association, the Camp Recreation Work, the K. of C., the Jewish Welfare Board, and the Salvation Army. The amount to be raised in this combined drive has been fixed at one hundred seventy million dollars."

"The idea now officially endorsed in principle by combining seven different causes, is the idea which has already been adopted by hundreds of American communities, and is commonly called the War Chest. It conserves the energy of the men and women in the community who must make the canvass for funds. These are the leading people of the community and they are also the people who must be depended on in the community to keep business going so that the sources of revenue may not be dried up. They should not be called upon to make more drives than are necessary."

A Plan of Wider Scope.

"The benefit to the community and to the causes of war relief is perhaps best seen by a concrete illustration. Aurora, as a township, has practically thirty-nine thousand population. Aurora went 'over the top' in every drive that she undertook, preceding the one for the War Chest. But in all the separate drives, previously made, all taken together, the total of different individual subscribers was 2500. To the War Chest or Patriots' Fund as it is called, Aurora has over 16,000 subscribers and the total amount pledged is over three hundred and thirty-six thousand dollars per year. This sum is subscribed on pledges that read 'for the period of the war.' This means a subscription of a little over eight dollars and fifty cents per capita, per year."

The Plan Used.

"The plan adopted began with the subscription of the working man who was asked to pledge one-half hour per week as a minimum subscription, or practically one per cent of his income. This applied also to those whose income was less than fifteen hundred dollars per annum. Employees were asked to sign pledges so that the payments should be made through the office of the business concern with which they were working."

"The second item in the plan was that the employers signed an agreement to duplicate the total of the subscriptions made by their employees on the half-hour basis. Practically every factory and every store and every shop in Aurora entered into this agreement and practically all these concerns became '100 per cent' which means that every individual in the concern is a subscriber to the Patriots' Fund."

Mr. Alden based his remarks on the following text: Psalms 122-3: 'Jerusalem is builded as a city that the Germans have been hurled backward, and the British are now in possession of Lempire, four miles from Le Calelet, an important enemy stronghold.

Bulgars In Retreat.

The Bulgarian retreat in Macedonia is reported to be a flight, with the retreating enemy burning villages in its wake. The allies have captured many prisoners and much material.

A score or more of Serbian villages have been retaken beyond the Rasim Bay ridge, on the Czerna, 15 miles southwest of Prillap. It is not unlikely the enemy will continue to retire until he reaches improved positions north and west of Prillap.

den than is warranted by his financial standing as compared with that of his neighbor, no difficulty is encountered.

Volunteer Subscriptions.

The plan of asking the people to voluntarily appear at the polls and subscribe is predicated upon the idea that it is not necessary for one patriotic American to solicit another patriotic American to do his clear duty towards this government.

Every man is as well able to buy bonds the first day of the campaign as he is the last day and there is no reason why he should take three weeks to make his decision. A man is only given one day to vote, and only one day was taken to register 13,000,000 men for the draft. Why should a man require more time to make up his mind to lend his dollars to his country than to pledge his very life to his country's service?

To Wage Campaign.

An extensive publicity campaign will be started immediately in Lee county to tell the people of the new plans for a short campaign. The press, as always, will be the principal factor. Churches, schools, community singing, parades, letters and public speaking will be used prior to the opening of the campaign, to make clear to the people what is required. It is expected that when the campaign opens, the response will be prompt and generous. Every county chairman in Illinois is looking forward to practically a 100 per cent registration.

TO TEST FIRE HYDRANTS SOON

Chief Coffey of the fire department will be busy the next two or three days testing the 206 hydrants in the city. This is the chief's annual duty.

DAVIS WILL GO TO CONFERENCE

Illinois men and women will meet in conference at the LaSalle hotel, Chicago, Sept. 24th. The conference is in the interest of the enlisted men of the Army and Navy of the United States and to consider the United War Work campaign authorized by the government. Luncheon will be served at 12:30 o'clock when Governor Lowden will deliver an address. Secretary Davis of the local Y. M. C. A. will attend and several other officials of the association will likely attend.

Get all-wool--it's economy

You know how important a factor in your affairs your clothes are, but probably don't think much about it except when you're buying them; and then a man is more apt to think about what the clothes cost than about what they are.

This season "what they are" will be the vital question. You've heard a lot about the excessive cost of wool; the facts about it are a good deal more real than the words about it.

But the result of high-priced wool shows in one of two ways; either your clothes will have less wool in them or you'll have to pay more for them. If you buy cheap clothes that means you don't care for all-wool; there's no way to get all-wool at "cheap" prices.

We're here in this business to be of service to you; and service to you means, as we understand it, supplying clothes that are best for you.

That means Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes; We're ready to show you the Fall suits and overcoats we have for you. All other lines of fall goods are ready also—Underwear—Shoes—Gloves etc.

CHAPTER XI.
A Day Among Days.

Again the next morning, Ellis Hardy entered his office to find a man waiting for him.

The man was Walter Kennedy. He had been gazing through a window as the doctor mounted the stairs, but turned to meet Hardy when he came through the door.

"Good morning," the physician said with an inflection that carried chill as well as surprise. "Well?"

He tossed his gloves to the desk and eyed the man before him with close scrutiny, letting his look travel from Kennedy's face down his long frame to his feet and back again, indignantly inquiring.

Open enmity was between them, unmistakable, with no attempt at concealment. This meeting was as though they had come together by arrangement to discuss a point on which they differed bitterly.

Kennedy's lips were set in a sneer and his snapping black eyes betrayed a flickering virulence.

"What are you doing here?" Hardy asked.

Kennedy cleared his throat as though, with the arrival of the moment when he must declare his errand, his courage waned. His glance, which had clung to Hardy's eyes from his entrance, wavered an instant. He seemed to struggle against the weakness and the heady look shot back.

"It's about Miss Mitchell," he said, speaking quickly, as one who wants to complete with dispatch an unpleasant task. "I don't know as you know, but an understanding—well, we have an understanding; have had for a long time. And I guess I have a right to warn you to keep away"—with the militant swagger of a small boy.

"It was all right, maybe, when you first came and people thought you were all right; but now—" He shrugged his shoulders.

"Go on!" snapped Hardy.

"Well, when they're saying all along that you're having to do with Bart Sears it won't do Miss Mitchell or any other girl no good to be seen with you, or to have people know that you see her, will it? She don't feel like telling you herself, of course—no girl would. I come here to warn you so."

He hesitated and his face went a trifle paler as Hardy took one step forward and resumed his former position, feet wide apart, arms folded, eyes burning.

"Go on!"

"That's all; that's all I got to say," a bit weakly.

Hardy moved around the table and leaned against it. He was not three feet from Kennedy and raised a forefinger to thrust it almost into the man's face.

"Did Ruth Mitchell send you here to tell me this?"

"You heard what I had to say!"

"Did Ruth Mitchell send you here with any such message?" louder and menacing.

"Well, she—that is, not exactly, she—"

"That's enough!" with an impatient gesture. "You've committed yourself."

"Now, I want you to tell me a few more things, since you've been so kind as to start this business of giving information."

"How am I supposed to be related to Bart Sears?"

"Well, you're doctorin' him, ain't you?"

"On what grounds do you base that supposition?"

Hardy fairly barked the words, and leaned forward so quickly that Kennedy drew back, face showing his alarm.

"They're sayin' so!" he evaded.

"Who is saying so? Who is this they?"

"Everybody."

"Who was the first one to tell this story?"

"Why, I don't know— Say, what are you asking me questions for?" he snarled, summoning a tardy bluster.

"I've said what I'm going to say; now I'll go!"

"Not yet, you won't!" Hardy said between shut teeth, and stepped quickly in the man's path. "In the first place, Kennedy, you are the man who has spread this rumor. No—don't deny it. I know!"

ms legs more deliberately, but in they all but ran him out of the office, and his feet, descending, thundered on the stairs; for the fear that strong men can send to weak was in his heart!

Hardy walked up and down his office.

"The presumption of the pup—the pup!" he muttered over and over. Then, with a quick shift of emotions, his mouth softening, he whispered:

"Ruth—is it going to hurt us—on the edge of happiness?"

He looked into the street—and saw Ruth Mitchell coming toward him.

She was in haste, walking rapidly, and as he looked she broke into a run for a half dozen steps. In the middle of the street she lifted her face to him and he saw it was hurried, pale. She bobbed her head in recognition and ran again. In a moment she was before him.

"Oh, Ellis, it's awful!" she whispered, coming close and taking one of his hands in hers. "You've heard?"

"What? These silly rumors—that I'm an outlaw without the courage of my convictions?"

"Yes."

"Yes, I've heard them," he said reassuringly. "What of it?"

"But they're saying such dreadful things!"

"Perhaps I'm open to some of it. I am treating Sears."

A pause, in which she did not return his searching gaze.

"I suppose some one had to—after he was hurt. I was weak enough to hope it wasn't you, though!"

"But so long as this entanglement is an honest one it will make no difference what people say, will it?"

"Of course," and his voice took on a harder note—"there are some who will try to hurt me. They are trying it now."

"Walter Kennedy is trying it, Ruth." She started visibly at the name. "He was here just a moment before you came. He came to tell me to keep away from you; that people were suspecting me and that I'd contaminate you."

"He said he had the right to give such a warning because—well, he intimated that you were to be his wife!" The girl gasped.

"He told you to stay away from me?" she whispered, eyes wide.

Hardy nodded.

"Did he have that right?" he asked.

"No, he didn't!"—weakly looking away from him, clasping her hands and drawing them up against her chest. "He—"

"Ruth!"—in sharp alarm at her hesitancy. "Are you holding anything back from me?"

"No, Ellis, he had no right to say such things," she assured, a trifle sadly. "But—my father likes Walter. He thinks he is the sort of a man I should marry, and I—maybe I've humored him by neglecting to make myself thoroughly understood."

"You know what dad is to me, how much I admire him, how good and brave I know him to be. It's hard for me to hurt him, but I can't marry Walter. He knows that, but it has never been necessary to come to an understanding with dad. It was cowardly to put it off, I know, but easier."

"Oh, but this shows him to be a contemptible beast!" She walked across the room and dropped into a chair as though wofully tired.

"And this other," she began in a low voice, "is bound to mean so much to us. You see, it puts you against dad, in a sense."

"I understand all that, Ruth," approaching and leaning over the chair in which she sat. "Don't think I relish this task of protecting Sears, though! I must, until I get him well—that won't be long."

"The day he ceases to be my patient! Don't you see? Then I'll be bound no longer; I'll be a free agent!"

He banged his fist onto the desk top and walked across the room.

"But, Ellis—you'd give him a chance, wouldn't you?"

He whirled on her, a peculiar smile on his face.

"When I came out here I held many high ideals about the treatment of criminals—I was all for plenty of mercy in all cases. But now I've come to know a type that is beyond mercy. He's gone too far; no chance remains to retrieve or reform. He's bad—every ounce of him."

"And he's a menace, Ruth—a horrible menace. I realize it, I'm sure, better than you do—or your father—or any one who has not come close to the man! Chance!" he scoffed. "Would you give a scorpion a chance? No, you'd stamp it to death the instant it ran out of the rocks!"

"No! Mercy is not mentioned in the same breath with Bart Sears. It is—at the very least—his liberty against lives, and, when the time comes, no one will be quicker to help take that liberty and if necessary, his life, than I will be. I know him; I know him!"

"Oh, you wouldn't do that?" she whispered. "You wouldn't—"

"Ruth, you'd give him more opportunity to kill and plunder!"

had come to it, and the flush of hot anger retreated from his face, leaving it pallid, drawn. A tense calmness came into his bearing.

"What's wrong, Ruth?" he asked, in a strained voice. "Why does the idea of my bringing Bart Sears to an accounting horrify you?"

He strove to keep his voice steady, to keep the surge of emotions from choking him, to drive away that black suspicion which had reared itself out of his just rage.

Kennedy—Little Foot—the outlaws—what connection was there between them? And Ruth—did he know her? Was he sure of her? Why this change in her?

"Oh, it had to come—you don't—you don't understand!" she moaned.

He walked from her, striving to regulate his thoughts, and stood beside the desk, brow furrowed. He thumped the wood with his knuckles as he fought to regain poise.

"Why, Ruth—I'm sorry—" he began weakly and, hands outstretched in a pleading gesture, turned. "You—"

He stopped, for he was alone in the room.

NEW BRIDGES CANNOT BE BUILT IN LEE CO. UNTIL AFTER THE WAR

able to get at their bridge repairs and culvert building.

2. Other towns are just gotten to the point when motor and engines for scarifying and rebuilding badly worn-out roads could be secured. Though employing local material they are forced to use fuel, which is under regulation by the government; 3. Two towns have been voted county aid for bridges which are badly needed and on which they are ready to proceed.

State Engineer Replies.
In a reply received yesterday Clifford Older, Chief Highway Engineer, advises Mr. Neighbors as follows:

"Replying specifically to your problem No. 1 I would say that as the townships do not find it necessary to transport by rail any materials, the work should proceed unless objection is raised by your county Fuel Administrator.

"The same would apply to your problem No. 2.

"Problem No. 3—I would understand that additional steel and cement will be required, as well as fuel, to operate the mixer. Neither steel nor cement companies are at liberty to ship materials except for strictly war work, or upon priority certificates issued by the federal government.

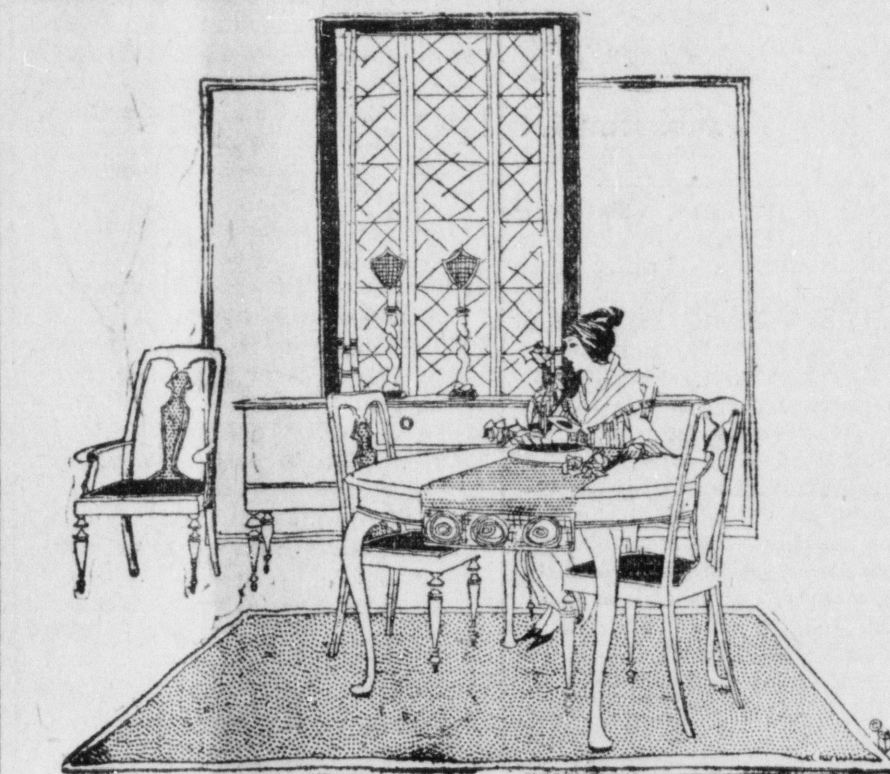

"We recently applied for a permit to purchase steel and cement for bridge work in Jersey county. The permit was refused, as well as seven applications for cement, stone, etc., to complete federal aid road work on the Dixie Highway, which is under construction. With this in mind I am of the opinion that it would be useless to attempt to get authority to purchase steel, cement, or other materials necessary or your bridge construction."

LAWYERS PAY TRIBUTE TO DEPARTED BROTHER

Attorney Morrison Spoke.
Attorney Charles B. Morrison, former United States District Attorney, and now master of the Federal Court of the Chicago district, was the first to speak of the life and character of the deceased. Mr. Morrison's address was interesting and was delivered with considerable feeling. He and Charles W. Brewster were companions in their boyhood days. They were close companions all during the life of Mr. Brewster. The speaker referred to the great affliction of the deceased and how cheerful and happy he was through it all. Mr. Morrison declared that Mr. Brewster was a good lawyer, possessed a keen mind and was not not for his affliction, would have been one of the leading members of the bar in northern Illinois.

Attorney A. C. Bardwell also spoke, saying some very kind things relative to the life and character of the deceased. Attorney J. W. Watts, who was one of Mr. Brewster's teachers in the study of law, delivered a splendid address, reviewing the life of the deceased while he was obtaining his legal education.

Others Made Addresses.
Others who addressed the association were State's Attorney Harry Edwards, Attorneys John E. Erwin and Clyde Smith, Judge R. S. Farrand and Judge James S. Baume. In the preamble read by Attorney Winn the history of the life of Mr. Brewster was reviewed in detail and was excellently prepared.
